

Thank you for choosing 'Sona Dolce Studio of Music' as your supplemental music education source.

The value of music education comes through the emotional and aesthetic experience that performing music provides, not only when performing on stage, but also when playing or singing in the privacy of your own home, for your own personal enjoyment. Music has healing benefits, and through it you can express or even change the emotions that you feel.

For children, learning an instrument "wakes up the brain" and can drastically enhance their scholastic abilities. Studies have shown the undeniable connection between academic growth and achievement and a solid music education - especially in studying or playing an instrument (the human voice is also an instrument).

The phrase 'Sona Dolce' is derived from a musical term meaning 'sweet sounding'. For me, there is no sweeter sound than that of children learning to appreciate and participate in music. This studio has been created with them in mind - to share with children the opportunity to understand and create music in a safe, supportive space and to help them to discover and develop that beautiful, inborn gift that we all possess.

Very musically yours,

Victoria May